Key Note Speaker

Dr Michael Freilich

Director of NASA's Earth Science Division

Michael H. Freilich is a physical oceanographer, a Professor at Oregon State University's College of Oceanic and Atmospheric Sciences, and the Director of the Earth Science Division, in the Science Mission Directorate at NASA Headquarters. From 1992-2006 prior to coming to NASA, he was Professor and Associate Dean in the College of Oceanic and Atmospheric Sciences at Oregon State University. He received BS degrees in Physics (Honors) and Chemistry from Haverford College in 1975 and a Ph.D. in Oceanography from Scripps Institution of Oceanography (Univ. of CA., San Diego) in 1982. From 1983-1991 he was a Member of the Technical Staff at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory. Freilich has been Mission Principal Investigator or Project Scientist on NASA's NSCAT, QuikSCAT, and SeaWinds/ADEOS-2 scatterometer missions.

Dr. Freilich has served on many NASA, National Research Council (NRC), and research community advisory and steering groups, including the WOCE Science Steering Committee, the NASA EOS Science Executive Committee, the NRC Ocean Studies Board, and several NASA data system review committees. He chaired the NRC Committee on Earth Studies, and served on the NRC Space Studies Board and the Committee on NASA/NOAA Transition from Research to Operations.

Freilich's honors include the JPL Director's Research Achievement Award (1988), the NASA Public Service Medal (1999), and the American Meteorological Society's Verner E. Suomi Award (2004), as well as several NASA Group Achievement awards. Freilich was named a Fellow of the American Meteorological Society in 2004.
